Please spiritually adopt an unborn baby!

Every day over 4,000 babies are killed by abortion. They have so little protection only the hand of God can end this massacre. Prayer is the best weapon to help them – the most effective. Say this prayer every day for nine months to save a baby's life!

Jesus, Mary and Joseph, I love you very much. I beg you to spare the life of the unborn baby that I have spiritually adopted who is in danger of abortion.

Prayer of Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen

"Before I formed you in the womb,
I knew you." (Jeremiah 1:5)

Prayer to End Abortion

Lord God, I thank you today for the gift of my life, and for the lives of all my brothers and sisters.

I know there is nothing that destroys more life than abortion, yet I rejoice that you have conquered death by the Resurrection of Your Son.

I am ready to do my part in ending abortion. Today I commit myself never to be silent, never to be passive, never to be forgetful of the unborn.

I commit myself to be active in the pro-life movement, and never to stop defending life until all my brothers and sisters are protected, and our nation once again becomes a nation with liberty and justice not just for some, but for all.

Through Christ our Lord. Amen!

ALL LIFE IS PRECIOUS

Heavenly Father, thank you for the precious gift of life.

Help us to cherish and protect this gift, even in the midst of fear, pain, and suffering.

Give us love for all people, especially the most vulnerable, and help us bear witness to the truth that every life is worth living.

Grant us the humility to accept help when we are in need, and teach us to be merciful to all. Through our words and actions, may others encounter the outstretched hands of your mercy.

We ask this through Christ, our Lord.
Amen

Aborted Babies and Baptism

Fr. Peter West, Priest Associate, Priests for Life

What happens to the souls of babies who die before baptism? This remains a mystery. We are free to believe that they are in heaven with God, but this has not been revealed and the Church does not have a definitive answer to this question. We simply say that we entrust these children to the mercy of God.

There has been an attempt by theologians throughout the centuries to reconcile two essential teachings of the Church - the necessity of Baptism for salvation and God's infinite mercy and His desire that all human beings be saved and come to a knowledge of the truth (cf. 1 Timothy 2:4). The Church teaches us that God commands us to be baptized and to baptize, but His actions in bestowing sanctifying grace are not limited to the sacraments. God in His mercy offers his salvation to every human being sometimes in ways known only to Him.

Since the twelfth century, the opinion of the majority of theologians has been that unbaptized infants are immune from all pain of sense. This was taught by St. Thomas Aquinas, Scotus, St. Bonaventure, Peter Lombard, and others. Pope Innocent III decreed: "The punishment of original sin is the deprivation of the vision of God; of actual sin, the eternal pains of hell." (III Decree, xlii, 3). Pre-born babies are incapable of committing an actual sin.

St. Thomas taught that these infants are not saddened by the loss of the beatific vision, either because they have no knowledge of it, and are not aware of their loss; or because, knowing it their will is entirely conformed to God's will and they are conscious that they have missed an undue privilege through no fault of their own. (De Malo, Q.v, a.3). In addition to this freedom from regret at the loss of heaven, these infants may also enjoy some positive happiness. St. Thomas says: "Although unbaptized infants are separated from God as far as glory is concerned, yet they are not separated from Him entirely. Rather they are joined to Him by a participation of natural goods; and so, they may even rejoice in Him by natural consideration and love," (In II Sent., dist. XXXIII, Q. ii, a.5). Again (a.2) he says: "They will rejoice in this, that they will share largely in the divine goodness and in natural perfections."

In the 18th century a heretical sect called Jansenists taught that all infants dying without baptism are condemned to the fires of hell. In 1794, Pope Pius VI condemned this teaching. He said, in effect, that one may believe in a limbo, a "middle state" of happiness that is not in heaven with God, and still be a Catholic (Errors of the Synod of Pistoia, No. 26). That remains the only significant mention of limbo in any official Catholic document.

The 1992 Catechism of the Catholic Church states: "As regards children who have died without Baptism, the Church can only entrust them to the mercy of God, as she does in her funeral rites for them. Indeed, the great mercy of God Who desires that all men should be saved, and Jesus' tenderness toward children which caused Him to say: "Let the children come to Me, do not hinder them," allows us to hope that there is a way of salvation for children who have died without Baptism. All the more urgent is the Church's call not to prevent little children coming to Christ through the gift of holy Baptism." (#1261)

In 1995 Saint Pope John Paul II issued his encyclical "Evangelium Vitae" or the "Gospel of Life". What he says in addressing women who have had abortions is relevant to the question of what happens to the souls of aborted babies:

"I would now like to say a special word to women who have had an abortion. The Church is aware of the many factors which may have influenced your decision, and she does not doubt that in many cases it was a painful and even shattering decision. The wound in your heart may not yet have healed. Certainly, what happened was and remains terribly wrong. But do not give in to discouragement and do not lose hope. Try rather to understand what happened and face it honestly. If you have not already done so, give yourselves over with humility and trust to repentance. The Father of mercies is ready to give you His forgiveness and His peace in the Sacrament of Reconciliation. To the same Father and to His mercy you can with sure hope entrust your child. With the friendly and expert help and advice of other people, and as a result of your own painful experience, you can be among the most eloquent defenders of everyone's right to life. Through your commitment to life, whether by adopting the birth of other children or by welcoming and caring for those most in need of someone to be close to them, you will become promoters of a new way of looking at human life." (E.V. #99)

Do you know someone who is struggling in the aftermath of an abortion? These outreaches and resources can help.

Rachel's Vineyard specializes in weekend retreats "to renew, rebuild, and redeem hearts broken by abortion". Established in the late 1980's by Theresa Burke and now an outreach of Priests for Life, Rachel's Vineyard holds hundreds of retreats every year throughout the United States and abroad. They are hosted by church-based ministries, counseling outreach programs, Project Rachel offices, Respect Life groups, and crisis-pregnancy centers and are offered "in both Catholic and interdenominational settings."

The weekend retreats provide a "supportive, confidential, and non-judgmental environment" where participants can experience reconciliation with God, themselves, and their aborted children.
